BLOOR & ISLINGTON:

where history meets happening

Quick: name a Toronto neighbourhood where 200 years of rich history mingles with the fashionable zeitgeist of today. If Bloor and Islington wasn't on the tip of your tongue, it's because happily, this little gem of a neighbourhood seems to be flying under the radar.

Defined by Bloor Street West, this neighbourhood emits a vibe as urban as it gets, serving as a mecca for those craving the latest must-haves of today. As the second most recognized street in Toronto, Bloor Street West is home to fashionable boutiques, quaint cafés, and eateries that buzz with verve. Venture a bit farther west and explore The Kingsway on Bloor: here, fine shops, bars, coffee houses and restaurants line the streets beneath wrought-iron coach lamps – and there's even a retro-chic-cinema. After all, what other area can boast a fully functioning movie theatre originally built in 1939.

For a more concentrated blast of the past, head to Islington Village. Here, the historic and charming shops and restaurants have stayed wonderfully preserved, making it a vibrant and charming urban village. Not to mention 25 mesmerizing murals covering over 15,000 square feet and 5 blocks of century old buildings in the village, dozens of shops and quaint places to sip a coffee, take in a gourmet cooking class, pick up some groceries or grab a bite to eat.

Without question, Bloor & Islington has something for everyone – whether you crave the new or embrace the old. Just please ... don't tell everyone.

KINGSWAY

our quest for cool things to do, great places to live, easy commutes, Torontonians have been branching out and a crown jewel in the city is quickly becoming The Kingsway. The sidewalks are lined with independent boutiques, java joints, bars and a multitude of restaurants serving up an eclectic mix of world cuisines.

The Kingsway is a great place to be all year round—where cocktails on summertime patios give way to hot toddies by the warmth of wintertime fireplaces. If it's good food and smooth drinks that you're after, all you have to do is decide what flavour and vibe you feel like indulging in. With a plethora of options to choose from, you may find you never want to venture outside of the neighbourhood again. Stratosphere is the new kid on the block at the heart of Kingsway's busy food scene. This ultra-modern resto-lounge and bar has a sleek design with a prominent city backdrop, friendly staff and a stellar menu. You'll find yourself a regular for Martini Mondays and their live music and DJ sets.

No matter what you fancy, you'll find it in The Kingsway. Yoga and boxing studios, designer consignment stores, specialty bakeries and butcher shop, a cigar shop and even a winery. You get the neighbourhood feel and everything you can think of, all at your fingertips.

Say CHEESE!

Cheese Boutique started in 1970 as a humble mom and pop corner store on Bloor Street. Having grown into a gourmet staple, 15 years ago it set up a new home in a former sausage factory on an industrial strip called Ripley Avenue off South Kingsway.

This epicurean emporium contains the cumulative knowledge of three generations. Over the years Cheese Boutique has augmented their offerings and people are noticing and appreciating. Pristine patriarch Fatos was recently honoured with the title of Knight of the Order of Agricultural Merit and his son, Afrim, was made a chevalier by Confrérie des Chevaliers du Taste Fromage de France in 2007.

At Cheese Boutique, prosciutto hangs from the ceiling, truffles are flown in every Wednesday, foie gras sits under lock and key, beef is dry aged 60 days, there are olive oils from 80 different terroirs and jams made from green walnuts, the best artisanal breads of the city, not to mention the chocolate boutique, pastry temptations and daily handpicked produce - but it is for the cheese that one must really come here. This is a place where “best before” dates do not apply. Taking something good and making it great is a constant philosophy of Cheese Boutique.

Aging and curing everything from cheese to beef to Meyer lemons is done with the expert knowledge that only comes with years of experience. Patrons can get a glimpse of the process by visiting the unique Cheese Vault.

Cheese Boutique has been supplying Toronto with succulent selections for 45 years and appreciates fine food as one does fine art. At this food museum, one's allowed to not only take the art home, but to nibble it enroute.

REEL HISTORY

KINGSWAY THEATRE

3030 Bloor St W | 416-232-1939

Walking into the Kingsway Theatre at 3030 Bloor Street West is like taking a trip back to the silver screen era, when people gathered at the local cinema as a primary source of entertainment. The 700-seat theatre first opened its doors in 1939; some of its original Art Deco design can be seen in the parapet at the top of the building.

In 1954, Twinex Century Theatre Company took over the theatre, with a staff of manager, two ushers, a doorman, a matron and three candy girls. Later, the theatre was bought by the Festival Chain, also owners of the Fox, Revue, and the Royal. When this company closed in 2006, the Kingsway remained vacant for two and a half years before being purchased by current owner Rui Pereira.

Thanks to Mr. Pereira, the theatre's carpets were replaced, seats reupholstered, washrooms refurbished, front doors were replaced and a new candy counter installed. The theatre reopened in early 2009, and has been showing first-run films in a charming historic setting ever since. A small movie screen upstairs showcases foreign films and documentaries.

TAKING ART TO THE STREETS

If you haven't strolled through charming Islington Village as of late, do go — and discover a veritable outdoor art gallery! Aptly named the Village of Murals, the area boasts 26 breathtaking murals spanning an astounding 15,000 square feet, amounting to 5 city blocks. These stunning pieces of photo-realistic and impressionist style art are meant to give today's audiences a peek into the area's history; the majority of murals depict people, places and events from the early 1800's & 1900's. Although several artists have helped contribute over the years, the artist responsible for the majority of work is Toronto-based artist John Kuna. Tour on your own and note how seamlessly the art seems to flow into alleyways and onto the sides of buildings — you can download a walking tour guide from villageofislington.com or, join a free guided tour between June and October. Either way, you'll discover that history class was never quite this inspiring!

STOREY TELLING

A HISTORIC LOOK AT THE KINGSWAY NEIGHBOURHOOD

Bounded by Bloor St to the south, Dundas St to the north, Mimico Creek to the west and the Humber River to the east, The Kingsway is without question, one of the premier neighbourhoods in Toronto's west end. One only has to look at the grand stone and brick homes set way back along the majestic oak-lined streets to get a sense of the wealth of the area. But this is a neighbourhood rich in history too.

It's a little known fact that the neighbourhood got its name from being situated on lands that were deeded to the Church of England back in the early 1880's. At the time, it was described as "a little bit of England, far from England" -- likely in large part because of the tudor and victorian architecture prevalent in the area. Today, the quiet streets still give off a somewhat royal feel. Come see for yourself... it's all just across the Bloor Street bridge!

“Don't buy the house, buy the neighborhood.”

HAVE TREADS Will Travel

By blogger Teresa Westlake

I'm a bit of a wimp when it comes to cold weather. Once the temperatures drop below -5, I move much of it inside to the treadmill. I've had some great runs indoors, and caught up on whole seasons of my favourite shows. But truth be told, I definitely get the best results when I run outside. It's hard to do hill training on a treadmill....

Luckily, the neighbourhood around BLOORVISTA is a fantastic area for runners of all types. If you're looking for a scenic route, this is a great location for it.

Bloor St. West – there are a seemingly endless supply of quiet, tree-lined residential streets that wind through this neighbourhood, both north and south of Bloor Street West.

Humber River Trail - for those longer runs, enter the Humber River Trail, about 2 kms east of Bloorvista. Heading north, the trail follows the Humber River Valley up to Finch Avenue. Heading south will take you along some mixed road / trail surface that connects to the Waterfront Trail.

West Deane Trail - from Islington Terrace, head north on Cordova, then along Burnhamthorpe to Kipling Avenue. Just off Wingrove Avenue (opposite the Islington Golf Course on the west side of the street) you'll find a discreet entrance to the West Deane Trail, which extends to Eglinton Avenue and the Eglinton West Trail at the north end.

Pub Crawl

By blogger | Night Crawler

Looking for the perfect place to down a drink with some pals? How about 11 places?

The right pub crawl route can make any day feel like St. Patrick's Day - and there's a wealth of awesome bars lining Bloor West, ready for your drinking pleasure. Kick things off near Bloor and Runnymede at the Kennedy Public House, a modern after-work joint that rotates the beer selection and menu seasonally. Then pop next door to their sister bar, The Sparrow, for a round on the upstairs pool table ("the only one in the neighbourhood", the staff proudly tell me), a $4 Jameson or Jager shot, and some AC/DC pinball.

Shakey's is a classic sports bar that's packed on game nights, especially during NHL season: Original owner Mike "Shakey" Walton played for the Leafs during their 1967 playoff run. Save your dough with a $5 house lager, or splash out on rotating craft pints or gourmet Caesars – but their secret weapon is the food, including a burger made with local Rowe Farms beef.

A few blocks away near Jane is Bryden's, a hot spot for beer lovers thanks to their 17 rotating taps, which often feature limited-edition brews from Great Lakes Brewery. (Snack alert: Their gloriously messy nachos are more topping than corn chip.)

For a game of pool, check out the Crooked Cue near Royal York station, which recently ditched its ancient all-brown-everything interior for a sleek, modern look, complete with a retractable roof. The beer selection skips all over the world, including some Belgians, and they've got plenty of big-screen TVs in case you want to keep tabs on a game.

Across the road is the Monk's Kettle, a stately pub that takes its food and beer seriously. Their menu signature is a game burger special: It might be wild boar, duck with apple-fennel slaw, or jerk goat with mango salsa. The beer list is stellar, with three taps that change weekly; if you can't decide on what to drink, they offer themed tasting flights, along with a respectable lineup of scotches.

Bloor and Islington is home to The Longest Yard, a loungey bar with a wide beer selection and a gussied-up pub food menu; grab a pint and a pound of wings for $14 if you're there Monday, or $5 Goose Island pints on Fridays.

Just up the street is Orwell's, the oldest of the old-school pubs, complete with wood paneling and dartboards. The beer selection is heavy on the mass-market lagers; stop in on Sunday, Monday or Wednesday and you can load up on meaty wings (try the suicide sauce) for 69 cents each.

Still got gas left in the tank? Pile into the subway or DD-mobile, or stumble for 10 minutes through an office park, and a visit to St. James' Gate will be your reward. Take advantage of their nightly two-for $10 pint specials, and bask in the warm, homey glow as you wind down your night.

Slainte!
